Social Determinants/Drivers of Health & Policy Implications

JODI BLOCH & JEREMY LEVIN

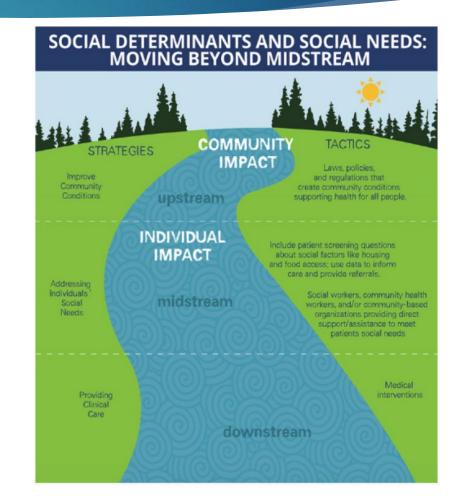

Kaiser and others define SDOH

Social Determinants of Health

Upstream to community impact

- Much of the work many of us do centers around impact on the individual
- To advance change beyond the individual focus attention toward the community
- Impacting larger change at a community level – whether that be local, state or national is hard
- Identifying your focus and building partnerships are essential

SDOH initiatives and policy examples

- CHAW initiatives
 - Environmental Health & Food Security
- WI Medicaid medically tailored meals 1115 waiver
- Other state Medicaid efforts
 - North Carolina
- Rural Hospital Initiatives
 - Fort HealthCare Housing in Jefferson Co
 - Grant Regional Health Center Growing Lancaster

How to start

- Identify the one area you think has the most impact on kids and families
- Identify where you want to have an impact thinking about the challenges in your local community is a good place to start
- Identify who else might be interested in this area
- Build connections & relationships with others interested in this issue – through local community groups, statewide groups and national advocacy organizations

- Identify your objective, the barrier and build a coalition
 - Is it a policy change or need for government, community organization or business investment?
 - ▶ Determine the level you want to focus is it local, state or federal?
 - Who do you need to influence and understand the lens through which they are viewing this issue?
- Identify a coalition leader(s)
- Gather data and stories to make the case
- Develop a collaborative plan of action and learn the steps in the process

Individual and group exercise Let's build a mini-campaign together

- ► Take the next 5 minutes and write down the ONE area related to SDOH that you want to focus and why.
- When you are done, put your post-it under the matching heading.
- Next we will gather into groups based on your answer.
- As small groups you will discuss and develop a basic framework for building a coalition to impact a policy change.
